A Question For You

Students have been criticized a lot lately for chapel conduct. We've done some of the criticizing. Now we want to do a little defending.

If chapel is to be compulsory, why not get speakers who will speak on some subject of vital interest—something the students are interested in—and that doesn't always mean men and going home on week-ends.

For instance, we students pick up our newspapers every day and read about strikes which tie up countless industries. Why not a labor man and a management man—each to present his side of the story?

We don't have to pick up a newspaper to read about Georgia politics. We've been right in the middle of them all our lives. Why not a chapel speech with Talmadge one week and Thompson the next?

We don't believe atomic energy is just a fantastic superman creation. We're vitally concerned about it. We listened wholeheartedly to Dr. Jones of Emory, who spoke to us on one phase of this subject. Why not some others to give us other phases?

And lastly, why not a student board to help plan chapel programs?

Then maybe we wouldn't go to sleep, read, rustle letters and papers, or just plain talk. We said "maybe." Isn't it worth a try?

Maybe we're just overly optimistic. Maybe we won't listen to any sort of chapel speaker unless his whole program is filled with jokes. Maybe these suggestions wouldn't work at all. But again we say—is it worth a try?

"A Word To The Wise...."

It has been said that "a word to the wise is sufficient." We are starting this new column with a wholehearted belief in that. We hope to bring out current issues and problems with both sides showing. We'll give you the facts—all we know, all we see, all we hear, all we can find out. You take it from there. We hope to bring things to light that have been veiled too long. We'll tell you about it. You DO something about it.

Proposed constitution and rule changes were presented to the student body in chapel Friday. The only controversy seemed to be over the constitution change regarding qualifications for holding office. The way this was stated originally a student must have at least two quality points in every course, that is at least a C.

The proposed change is to allow a student to hold office with a C average. Sounds like the same idea. But this way a student could make a D, C, and a B, or an A, D, D, and still be eligible to become your leader.

It was stated that this is the way it has been practiced in the past. If so a very serious mistake has been made, for we have been violating the constitution. We had better change our ways or change the constitution.

But you think about it and let people know how you feel. Tell your student council representative or a member of the faculty committee on student relations. Do you think that although a girl fails to a D in one subject and does well enough in another to balance it with a B, that she should be allowed to hold office? Or do you think your leaders should be able to make a C or better in every subject?

Have You Heard?

Have you heard that it isn't nice to talk behind somebody's back? We'd like to remind you of that. If you have something to say, say it. If you like something let people know it. (A compliment might encourage more of the same. If you dislike something and have your reasons speak up. Grumbling to your roommate won't change things.

We will print all letters that you write. We may not agree with you, but we'll let you know about that too. As the trite but still true saying goes, "We may not agree with what you say, but we'll fight to the death for your right to say it."

Address letters to The Colonnade. All letters must be signed.

Election Days Are Here Again

Elections aren't far away—elections for Georgia's next Governor and the President of the United States, that is. And already campaign speeches are filling the air.

Which way are you going to cast your ballot? The Colonnade hopes to take a poll by our next issue to see what candidates the students will support.

Recently The Colonnade has heard from three aspiring presidential candidates, Wallace Truman, and Stassen, which indicates that already at least some of the candidates are thinking about the votes of college students all over the nation.

So which way will you vote? Be thinking about it, so we can get your choice for Georgia's next governor and America's next president soon.

"The Stone Age? Anywhere from 16 to 60 and the bigger the stone the better she likes it!"

The Colonnade Speaks

You've probably already noticed our new column "A Word to the Wise." This is one of the steps we are taking to really try to make The Colonnade the voice of the students.

And just how do we propose to do this? Well, first we're going to try to answer questions about various issues and events on campus that we believe you might want to have answered. Secondly, we want you to tell us things you'd like to know. That is, if you want to know the reason why we can't have certain rules or regulations removed, we'll try to find the answer.

We'll try to present both sides of an issue fairly. We'll print it and let you draw your own conclusions. In other words unless The Colonnade really is the voice of the students—what you think, believe, or want—we might just as well throw our pretty but misleading slogan out the door.

We want to make that slogan mean something, though and we're going to try very hard to make that slogan come true. We need your help and we hope we'll have it.

Aren't People Funny?

All students are members of the three major organizations on campus, Y, CGA, and Rec—so says the handbook. But do most of these students ever really participate in those organizations?

People are funny. We fidget in chapel when rule changes are discussed. But we'll criticize those same rules next year and say that we didn't have "a thing to do with making them."

We seldom go to Y's varied programs. Or if we do, the percentage of students that usually attend is something like five per cent of the students enrolled.

We go out once in a while for all those varied activities Rec sponsors. Or we don't go out at all; we sit in our rooms and say, "There just isn't a thing to do around this place!"

We complain because we've never been asked to do anything in these organizations, but we've never demonstrated an interest in them, and isn't it ironic that at the same time we have nothing to do all these organizations need people to get something done?

Aren't people funny?

Between Heaven and Earth

By ELIZABETH KENDALL

Have you ever had the mad desire just to take off and fly around in the sky to see what was there? That's exactly what happened to me one time. I was walking around at an airfield and over on a far runway there sat one of the cutest little "Piper Cubs I ever saw. In a shy sort of manner I walked over to it—and looked in.

My stars—I've never seen so many switches and buttons all in one place before in my life! Something—it might have been gravity—seemed to pull me inside the cockpit of the plane. Once in, my curiosity got the better of me, and I began fumbling with the switches. I turned this one and that one and nothing happened until—whooops I looked up and lo and behold!—there was something right in front of me spinning round so fast I couldn't even see what it was. The next thing I knew the whole earth seemed to have gone haywire!

I looked down and the ground was going round and round so fast—for a minute I couldn't catch my breath because the earth was whirling round at such terrific speed. Then it hit me! It wasn't the ground that was running away—it was the plane! And I was inside! For a minute I didn't know whether to jump out or just—then I realized that the very thing that I had wished for all my life was happening to me. I was flying! I was going up and—why, I was so high up I couldn't even distinguish one poor earth-bound object from another.

When I finally gathered my wits enough to look around me I saw a sight that was not to be seen on earth nor in heaven—it was a sight between earth and heaven. I was inside a cloud! It wasn't an ordinary rain cloud (those things that seem to have a terrible tendency to collect in one big huddle over Jesselville, my former home). It was a beautiful cloud inlaid with gold and here and there was a strip of magnificent silver that blended with all the colors of the rainbow. Let me tell you about that rainbow—it wasn't like the rainbows that I had seen so many times from the earth. This one ran all around the sides of the cloud. It came from the top and wound down to the bottom of the cloud like a huge supporting column, except it wasn't a column. It ran with a smooth line all over the cloud.

Maybe you're wondering what happened to the plane. Well, somehow it just floated over in a corner of the cloud and rested.

Frances Yarbrough Presents Recital

Frances Yarbrough will present a piano recital Thursday, May 6 at 7:30 in Russell Auditorium. The program will include:

I.
Rondo in B minor—P. E. Bach
Toccata in A major—Paradies
Prelude and Fugue in C minor—J. S. Bach

II.
Sonata, Op. 2 No. 3—Beethoven
Nocturne, Op. 15 No. 1—Chopin
Scherzo in E minor—Chopin

III.
Etude, in C sharp minor, Op. 2, No. 1—Scriabine
Nocturne—Resphigi
General Lavine eccentric—Debussy
Sentimental Rhapsody

there contentedly just as it settled in the soft folds of the cloud. I looked back at the plane and there it sat—in the corner. Don't ask me how this all happened; I've never tried to find out.

Let me tell you what I did when I got hungry. I would reach up and break off a piece of cloud or rainbow. Talk about delicious—I never tasted anything like it on earth. I never wanted anything to drink because the air inside the cloud had such a delicate texture it left no room for thirst.

The day I first came to this cloud was thousands of years ago; so far I've only gotten around to exploring about one-fourth of the cloud. If I stay here another thousand years I doubt if I ever get it all explored because there are so many little intricate designs and details. My plane is still in the corner waiting to take me back to earth anytime I want to go, but frankly, I think the plane is enjoying the cloud just as much as I am.

If any of you ever wondered what happened to me, now you know that I'm living in a cloud so high up in the sky you can't even see it. Am I enjoying life?—ummmmmmmmm.

NEW PENGUIN CLUB OFFICERS are Joan Hungerford, secretary; Joyce Mills, president; and Carol Jones, publicity chairman.

Dr. Rudd Receives Herty Medal At Exercises In Russell Auditorium

Dr. Wortley F. Rudd, dean emeritus of the School of Pharmacy, Medical College of Virginia, was presented the 1948 Charles H. Herty Medal in Russell Auditorium on May 1. The medal was presented to Dr. Rudd by Dr. Charles Lester, president of the Georgia Section of the American Chemical Society.

Ellen Gwin of Smyrna, president of the Chemistry Club on campus, which sponsors Herty Day, presided over the ceremony which honors those scientists who contribute most to the South.

The Herty Medal was named in honor of the late Charles H. Herty who originated the process of making paper from southern pine. Mrs. W. D. Hooper of Athens, Mr. Herty's sister, was present at the ceremonies. Other relatives present were Mrs. M. S. Bell of Milledgeville, a cousin; Mrs. Oliver Herty Lucas of Atlanta, a cousin; and Mr. Charles Herty Hooper of Athens, a nephew.

Accompanying Dr. Rudd to GSCW were his wife, his daughter, Mrs. R. R. Cwathmey; and a niece, Mrs. Hugh Rudd.

Well-known scientists from Virginia, Alabama, Tennessee, South Carolina, Maryland, and colleges all over Georgia were here for the presentation.

Events of Herty Day included an afternoon tea at 3:30 at the Mansion home of President and Mrs. Guy H. Wells; dinner on front campus at 5:30; presentation of the medal at 7:30 with an address by Dr. Rudd; and a dance in the gymnasium following the address.

The program will feature panel discussions on "Problems of Collegiate Editors" led by Davin Cook, editor of the South Georgian, South Georgia College; and "Advertising and Financial Problems" led by Henry Brewer, Young Harris College.

Speakers will include Mr. Jim Gray, editor of The Albany Herald, banquet speaker, May 14; Mr. Tyus Butler, journalism department, University of Georgia, luncheon speaker, May 15; and Mr. Richard Joel, journalism department, Emory University, who will address GCPA on May 15.

"Wishing" Is Theme Of Junior-Senior

"Wishing" will be the theme for the junior-senior dance on May 15. Girls and their dates will dance to the music of Jesse Duckworth and his orchestra from Macon.

Rollene Sumner and Sally Harteil are co-chairmen for the dance, and Betty Jane Sims and Marylene Jackson will be in charge of decorations. The refreshments committee is headed by Eva Pope and Ruth Clary.

Janet Slaughter and Myra Sue Jones have charge of the invitations. Cathy Clarke and Linda Lambeth are making plans for the lead-out and Natalie Hymes and Betty Lane will be in charge of the clean-up committee.

Dr. Wells Returns To America May 15

Dr. Guy H. Wells, who has been in Germany since January as a member of the visiting experts program, will return home the latter part of May. While overseas, Dr. Wells made a trip to Great Britain. He was a speaker at the third meeting of the Institute of International Understanding. This meeting was sponsored by six Rotary Clubs in Great Britain. Dr. Wells' subject was "Germany, the Major Problem of Europe."

Dr. Wells is now in Italy and will leave around May 15 to return to America.

GSCW Receives PTA Scholarship

The National Congress of PTA has awarded a scholarship to GSCW for a three week work conference at Northwestern University August 9-27.

Eight scholarships were awarded to various schools all over the nation. GSCW received one because of the outstanding work in teacher training and its work with the Georgia Congress of Parent-Teachers. One representative of the GSCW faculty will attend the conference.

Mrs. Fred Knight of Cartersville, is the Georgia president of the PTA.

Inspiration Plus Originality Produces Most Anything

Never in my three years with The Colonnade have I been told to write a feature on anything. There has always been some definite assignment. I used to think: "Ah! What fun I would be to write on anything I wanted to," then I'd proceed to write what I was told to. So now my chance! And no ideas!

That's the way life is—when you're anxious to do something nobody asks you; and when you're nonchalantly minding your own business, somebody tells you to do something—anything, just so it's something! This thing has worried me for a week, and the harder I think the fewer ideas tumble from my idea-machine.

It all goes to show that life is full of funny things—like editors and things. I guess she'd like for me to talk about the pretty grass and newly-buzzing bees; or the wonderful sunshine I hope it isn't raining when the naper comes out and all the lovely girls gathering at Nesbit Woods for sunbaths. Then she'd have me write about the sad part of Jesse's life with classes to attend, themes to write, pianos to practice, tennis textbooks to study, and spring fever to top it all off. Then brighten up with summer plans to the mountains or the seashore or the loaves of loafing. But what's the use of writing about those things? Everybody can write about those.

No, indeed! This is the day of originality! Everyone must be original, for the world is too much with us in ruts. They must keep young ideas, 'cause that's the way Fulton became all steamed up with his boat, and that's the way Franklin lightened upon electricity. If the human race is to progress and not slide back into obscurity, we must keep young and keep ourselves armed with new ideas—or so the philosophers say! And that's why I can't write about the beautiful spring atmosphere. Perhaps I could write about

It Really Happened

By CAROL JEAN CASON

Now, 'fore I start telling yall this, I want you to know that me being a swamp gal like I am I've heard plenty tall tales about things that happened down there that I know ain't so. But this thing I'm fixing to tell you is nothing but the slap o'-dab truth. I know, 'cause I saw it with my own eyes, and anybody whet don't believe it can go home with me sometimes and I prove it to you.

I live right smack in the middle of the Okefenokee, and I been going through that swamp by myself since I was knee high to a alligator, but I ain't never seen nothing happen to beat what I saw happen when I was home springing holidays. I was out fishing one day when I heard a powerful big commotion right around the bend and I rowed down there real soft like to see what was going on.

Well, sir, right there, 'fore my eyes I saw a alligator and a woodpecker having the biggest free-for-all you ever did see. The woodpecker's nest was right there near the bank and I guess that alligator must've been trying to get some eggs out'n it while the mama was off somewhere and musta come back and caught him at it.

Anyways she was really giving him fits. One of his legs had got caught in a tree crot, and he couldn't get back in the water, and that woodpecker was speckle-ing the life outa him. She'd dive down and peck at his eyes 'til she had one of 'em most put out. I noticed she was being mighty careful about getting in reach of the alligator's tail. You know they have long heavy tails, and they use them when they fight like we use our fists, and if one of 'em ever hits you with his tail, you'll never live to tell the tale.

Well, that bird as I said, was being mighty careful not to get in reaching distance of that tail, and she musta plum forgot about it. I rowed back to the house as fast as I could and told Pa to come quick and bring a rope, and he did, and me and him went down there and tied that alligator and loosed his foot and brought him home. Anybody that don't believe this can go home with me like I said before and I'll show you that gator. He stays in our front yard all the time, now, 'cause he can't go in the water with that hole in him or he'd drown. He seems to be right happy, too, but boy, you ort to see him run under the porch steps whenever he hears a bird call and I don't much blame him, do you?

Phi Upsilon Omicron Receives 10 Members

Have You Ever Pictured What Life Without Rules Would Be Like?

Why do we have rules and regulations? Why is it necessary for 1056 girls to live under certain restrictions? The fact that there are 1056 girls living together away from their respective homes and parents who can give them individual guidance and instruction should give you a clue.

Let's imagine for a moment what life at GSC would be like if there were no rules at all. Let's pretend that suddenly all regulations are removed, and everyone is allowed to do just as she pleases.

For a while, everyone is happy. The world is fine. We can go to the show any and every night. We wear shorts or blue jeans to the dining hall and to classes. We can stay up and out as late as we wish. There's no study hall, so we don't have to study—and a lot of us won't. But why should we study? There's so much else to do. Still, it's surprising each time the end of the quarter rolls around to see how many of our best friends won't be back. They just didn't have time to study.

There's no place that we cannot go—no special time to be back in the dorm. One girl's mother who came up to visit wanted to know why the girls bothered to live in the dormitories. She said we should all just attend schools near our homes so that we wouldn't have to pay for living in the dorms when we were never there.

At times, we wonder if we aren't a little tired of this: some how everyone seems to be getting on each other's nerves. Helen likes to go to bed early, but the girls down the hall like to stay up late, and they all congregate in the room next to Helen's and begin their bridge session at 1:00.

Projects Offer Summer Fun

Do you have vague plans for what you'd like to do this summer? If you're not quite sure yet what you are going to do, why not investigate some of the various projects sponsored by the national "Y"?

Hartford, Conn., Columbus, Ohio, Minneapolis, Minn., Chicago, Ill., Los Angeles, Calif.—these are the places you can go for students in industry projects. If your tastes run more in the direction of college camps, there are two of those, too—one in Estes Park, Col., and one at Lake Geneva, Wis.

Then, if you'd like to see how our government ticks, there's a students in government project in Washington.

If you're interested in such experiences, see Miss Beebe Davis in the "Y" apartment soon because some of these projects may be closed to application in the near future.

Y' Sponsors Sunday Breakfasts

Are you up-to-date? Do you know what's going on in the world? No, well, then here's your chance.

Sunday morning at 8:30 in the "Y" apartment—that's the time and the place. And what happens? You can discuss the Palestine question or the Italian elections over a cup of coffee and a plate of pancakes and bacon.

For further information as to the topic to be discussed next week, see Beebe Kent in Atkinson.

ATLANTA POET TO PRESENT LAST PROGRAM OF SERIES

Mr. Daniel Whitehead Hickey, poet of Atlanta, will present the last program of the GSCW lecture series tonight in Russell Auditorium.

how to prevent such conditions by proper eating practices. The discussions were held in Peabody Auditorium, the visual aid room, and Porter Hall at various hours on Thursday and Friday. Dr. Wilkins was assisted by Margie Lawrence, Evelyn Warren, and Sara Jane Pate.

Student Recitals Presented In Porter

Barbara Burch, a senior from Thomson, and Willena Malone, a junior from Barlow, will present voice recitals next week. Barbara will present her program May 12 at 7:30 in Porter Auditorium. She will be assisted by Martha Jane Darden who will give a group of readings. Anna McMillan will be the accompanist.

On May 13, Willena will present her recital at 7:30 in Porter Auditorium. Jean Mintz will give two groups of readings. Polli Powell will be the accompanist.

Dr. Wilkins Conducts Nutrition Clinic Here

Dr. Walter Wilkins, director of nutrition investigation service Florida State Department of Health, was on the GSCW campus Thursday and Friday conducting a nutrition clinic for home economics majors, parents, teachers and others interested persons. The people attending were given an opportunity to observe various conditions as a result of malnutrition and the danger signals. Discussions were given on

Rec's Scrapbook

Newly-elected executive board members of the Recreation Association on campus held their annual spring retreat at Lake Laurel May 1 and 2, and formulated plans for the coming year. Decisions concerning Play Days, intramurals, Snag Week, skill clubs, appointments to the general board, and awards were reached by the board. Louise Crawford, of Macon, president of Rec presided at the meeting. The other members of the board are Happy Dowis, Atlanta; Dorothy Pinkston, Atlanta; Louise Moore, Decatur; Martha Pittard, Winterville; Adele Rogers, Thomson; Jean Hayslip, Statesboro; and Estelle Elliott, Cartersville. Miss Alethea Whitney met with the group as the associational advisor.

SCRAPS FROM THE SKILL CLUBS

GSCW Tumbling Club, under the direction of Miss Grace Chapin, presented a program for the Covington High School and the Decatur High School on April 24.

Nelle Pullen, president of Tennis Club, announced that the group has begun their annual spring ladder tournaments. These games will be continued through this quarter until the championship is attained. Singles are doubles tournaments are being played.

Members of Folk Dance Club held their spring retreat April 30, at Lake Laurel. New officers for next year are: Gloria Peacock, Thomaston, president; Helen Ledbetter, Eatonton, vice-president; Nan Chewning, Tucker, secretary.

The members of Folk Club who attended the Folk Dance Festival at Berea College, Berea, Kentucky, gave demonstrations of the new dances they learned. These girls were Alice Cheek, Dolores Wheeler, Avis Register, Kathryn Phillips, and Helen Ledbetter. Miss Alethea Whitney is sponsor of the club.

MODERN DANCE CLUB

Frances Lawson, of Tennille, soloist on this year's program and member of the club for three years, has been announced as president of the Modern Dance Club. Other officers in the club are: Elizabeth Mitchell, vice-president; Marianne Griffith, secretary; Ruth Carter, treasurer; Sara

Thirteen Students Are Initiated Into Alpha Psi May 3

Thirteen students are to be initiated into the national honorary dramatic fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega. The pledge ceremony was held Monday, May 3, in the radio studio and formal initiation is to be May 10 in the Little Theatre. The annual Alpha Psi Omega banquet will be held on May 11.

Those being initiated are: Margaret Anderson, Waycross; Frances Binion, Milledgeville; Betty Broach, Campton; Hermice Daniell, Marietta; Marie Branan, Mil-

Kennedy, research chairman; Irma Wall and Estelle Elliott, advisor to the junior dance club; Ann Smith, social chairman; and Delna Carr, music chairman.

The junior and senior Modern Dance clubs again presented their 1948 program on April 27 for several members of the faculty who were out of town the night of the formal concert. Ann Sallee, Milledgeville, former president and featured soloist in dance club, was a special guest. Following this program, the dance club members were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. George Reiswender at a party in their new home.

SPRING PLAY DAY

Members of the executive and general Rec boards attended Spring Play Day at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, April 24. On Saturday morning there was a general meeting of all the visiting delegates led by Miss Catherine Allen, a professor of physical education there. Volleyball and kickball teams were then selected and games played until lunch time.

Saturday afternoon there were tennis matches, ping-pong games, shuffleboard rallies, and swimming meets. Members of the physical education classes at Knoxville gave demonstrations in modern dancing, tap dancing, folk dancing, and tumbling for the visitors.

Saturday night there was a mixed square dance for all of the students. Miss Whitney, Miss Chapin, and Miss Edmondson accompanied the girls.

Softball intramurals will begin May 4 for dormitory contests. Julia Hardin, manager, has announced. Three practices are required of each girl before she is qualified to play in the games.

ledgeville; Edith Ellington, Danville; Myrtle Hartley and Frances Lawson, Tennille; Frances Harwell, McRae; Jeanne Kleber, Atlanta; Mary Mickelson, Columbus; Joyce Olipant, Sparks; and Catherine Storer, Savannah.

WHY...I smoke Chesterfield

(FROM A SERIES OF STATEMENTS BY PROMINENT TOBACCO FARMERS)

Liggett & Myers buy top quality cigarette tobacco and pay top prices for it... nobody will average paying more than they do year in and year out.

I've been smoking Chesterfields ever since I've been smoking. I just like them... they have real tobacco flavor.
